Harry Potter's Friend Dobby Killed!

By Saran Brainch

At 8:23pm 11 June, the so called 'free elf' Dobby was murdered in attempt to save his friend Harry Potter. He successfully saved Harry but the cost was fatal. As the group of friends teleported away to the remote island of Pembrokeshire they realised that the house elf had a dagger dug into his chest.

Bellatrix Lestrange had thrown her steel dagger at Harry Potter hoping it would injure or even kill the teenage boy. Heroically the brave house elf jumped in the way to save his best friend. The time was just past 8:20pm 11 June, which was 8 days before Hermione's birthday, when this tragic event took place. Once the group of children had teleported out of The Malfoy Manor and into the safety of the beach of Pembrokeshire, where the buried him, they realized that Dobby had been stabbed. Immediately they tried to save their beloved friend.

Here is the opinions of Ron Weasley, "I just feel so bad that Dobsta he was just such a good serv- I mean friend he was just so loyal and nice It's such a shame that he died and it's all because of that stupid Bellatrix! Now who's going to make my egg and bacon breakfast?" this was opinion of young boy Ron. Finally these are the words of the soul crushing Voldemort, " Aaahhhh, finally that annoying servant is gone. He was such a pane doing whatever those spoilt children told him to do, If anything Bellatrix did him a favour. He was such peasant. Bellatrix will definitely be getting a promotion. I saw it myself, she threw it exactly in his chest it was just perfect."

Currently, Ron, Hermione and Harry are carrying on with their wizarding lessons at Hogwarts. They are still regretting Dobby's death. Every day of his death they visit the elf's grave preform a spell of reoccurring to talk to him for a few moments.

Here is a picture of his grave-